A LAND OF MURDERS.

Since there are annually eight times as many murders committed in this country as in any other on the globe we must accept the title, aithough it is odious. Heathen Japan with its 55,000,000 people has one homicide to 20 in America where we boast of our intelligence and larger liberties. The reason for this showing against this republic is because everybody is free to possess weapons and use them—because the ready weapon in moments of wrath multiplies these high crimes and then go to the pot the post to the interests of the public welfare. There are a few of his former supposed friends who are shouting considably and creeping around to overthrow him, but their exhibitions of ingraticonvicted, or even 100 executed. It is difficult to detect murderers, but it should not be made difficult to try or to convict them; and there is no good reason why it should cost the state thousands to convict an assassin, or fair-minded men have a habit of going about their duties with little fuss. It cannot be denied that Senator Bulkeley has been an effective and conscientious senator. Few men in so brief an experience in the greatest legislative body in the world have proved themselves so efficient and influential as he and it indeed will be a striking instance of party ingratitude if he is not selected again as his party's candi-

A Practical Suggestion.

There is a considerable noise and bluster in the factional campaign to oust United Staes Senator Morgan C. Bulkeley from his seat, but the senaon the state central committee of political party within a series of five years from that would be the date of his appointment, seems worthy of earnest attention upon the part of those who are working for state regulation of public service corporations. His assertion that such corporations have for many years "kept their hands upon the throat of the public through the agency of state central committees of political parties" can scarcely be dis-puted. These organizations as at present constitute undoubtedly work against the welfare of the careless voters who permit them to exist. They are also capable of combining at need against the common good. To permit men of this type to direct a move ment which-should have for one of the chief aims the abolition of such unfaithed carrents would be to render it.

True, and the above loses none of its force from the fact that some of those now opposing Senator Bulkeley are holding high official positions and owed their first entrance into public life to the favor of Honorable Morgan G. Bulkeley.

Bulk obliged to be careful in their dealings with corporations. Many envious eyes would be watching them and it would not be easy to escape their vigilance. The danger in this case would be more from demagogy than from dishonesty. No doubt the offices would be sought for ulterior ends (as they will be under any mode of choice) but perhaps office holders who are at the mercy of the voters would be likely to do less mischief than those who would be kept in office indefinitely by the influences that originally put them there. The eternal problem of "watching the watchers" is unusually complex in the present case. present case,-Bridgeport Telegram.
